

Title	Artificial Intelligence and Technology in Private Law
Lecturers:	Prof. Attila Menyhárd , professor of civil law ELTE Law Faculty, Civil Law Dept. menyhard@ajk.elte.hu
Brief description	The course addresses the impacts of developments of technology and artificial intelligence in private law. Beyond general issues (fundamental rights, role of regulation) property law, contract law, liability in tort and sectoral issues (banking, finance, health care sector) are covered.
Schedule	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. AI and Fundamental Rights – the landscape2. Persons and assets in the digital age3. Contract law: contracting via standard contract terms on the internet and digital services; the European legal environment4. Formalities in contracts and wills5. Self-driving cars and smart cities6. The European approach; product liability and structural context of liability7. Liability of online service providers (platforms in particular)8. Smart contracts, cryptocurrencies and non-fungible tokens9. Data and digital assets in property law10. AI in the health care sector11. Data protection, AI and digitalization12. Closing, conclusions and evaluation
Materials/Recommended readings	Slides of the courses and further materials are to be provided during the semester

Assessment/Exam	Students are required to write an essay or to make an oral presentation on a topic chosen by them freely within the scope of the course, depending on the size of the group and as it would be arranged on the first class.
------------------------	---